Presidents' Day is the day when we celebrate the birthdays and lives of the US Presidents. Did you know that Abraham Lincoln had a family? Click here to view a drawing of them from his time in the White House. After you view the drawing, take some time to observe, reflect, and question: What do you notice first about this drawing? Second? Third? Why do you think this drawing was made? Do you have any questions about this drawing? 	Did you know that all stories have a shape? Click here to watch a video that goes over the parts of a story. Think of your favorite story- it can be a movie, TV show, book, play, or even one someone told to you. Draw a diagram of your story using "the mountain." Bonus: can you discuss the "mountain" with someone in your home language, and ask them about their favorite story? Chances are, it is "mountain-shaped" too! 	Watch yesterday's video again. Can you create a more entertaining video that tells a story of your own using "the mountain"? Try using an app like iMovie, Windows Media Maker, Instagram, or Tik Tok to quickly edit your video. Share your work with your ELA teacher and your friends. 	Homophones are words that sound the same, however they are spelled differently and have different meanings. Click here to play Homophone Match. Scroll down to the advanced games if you want a challenge! 	Click here to take a zen moment watching manatees swim at Florida's Homosassa Springs Wildlife State Park ! This live webcam gives us a look into their otherworldly oceanic habitat.
