When you find out what is the same, you compare. When you find out what is different, you contrast. Comparing and contrasting can be used in many different school subjects, and you will often use a Venn Diagram (like the one below) to show your work. Complete the chart below to reflect on your experience with virtual learning so far. WHAT I LIKE ABOUT:  	People all over the world enjoy watching movies and tv shows. Although many are made in English, there are film industries all over the world making wonderful stories for us to watch. Click here to go to Flixable, a site that will let you search movies and tv shows on Netflix. Try searching for options in your home language. Choose a movie in your home language (if available) and watch it!	Movie reviews are articles written by a person who has seen a movie. The writer briefly describes what the film is about and then gives their opinion about it. Think about the movie you watched yesterday (or another you have recently seen) and plan to write a review of it using this tool:  	A root word is a word from which other words are made. Knowing how to recognize these building blocks of English is an important skill. Click here to learn a little bit more about root words and practice using them 	Turn your plan from Wednesday into a one paragraph written movie review that tells other people what you thought about the film you watched. Make sure to include details like special effects, music, actors, plot line, and problematic areas without spoiling the movie! Try starting your review with: Recently, I watched _____.
