Music is a language that unites the world. Even if you don't understand someone's language, you can often listen to a song from their culture and find something to enjoy. Choose one musical tradition listed below and listen to one of the short podcasts on the page. Click here for music from the Arab world Click here for music from the Gulf Coast Highway Click here for music from India Share what you learned with an older family member or trusted adult, then ask them about music that they enjoy. Try one of these questions: What music do you like? What did you listen to when you were younger? Who is your favorite artist that doesn't sing in English? Bonus: If you can, try to have your conversation in your home language!	Need to learn to read music for one of your classes? Click here to work through a tutorial that will help you learn this skill! 	What's your favorite song right now? Do you know ALL the lyrics? Click here to do LyricsTraining! How well do you really know your favorite song? 	Now that you really know the lyrics to your favorite tune, take some time to create a shareable graphic using your favorite line or two using Canva (requires a free account). Take a look at this example:  Click here to get started with Canva. Last, share your creation!	Click here to read about the parts of a song. Now that you know about the intro, verse, lift, chorus, bridge, break, and outro, can you apply your knowledge and write your own song? Click here to access Song Lyrics Generator, a site that will help you write your song Click here to access Soundtrap, a site that will help you record your song When you're done, share your creation with your music teacher! Bonus: Can you record a song in your home language?
